

May Roll Period of WTI Crude Oil in S&P Dow Jones Commodity Indices

NEW YORK, MAY 1, 2020: S&P Dow Jones Indices (“S&P DJI”) announced today that based on prevailing market conditions, it will roll WTI Crude Oil to the August 2020 contract for the impacted S&P DJI commodity indices, including the S&P GSCI index family, which are currently scheduled to roll into the July 2020 contract. This will occur during the regularly scheduled roll period in May. There will be no modifications to designated roll-in contracts for indices, including the 1-Month Forward index and other Forward indices, not scheduled to roll into the July 2020 contract as part of the May roll. The WTI Crude Oil July 2020 contract will not be an eligible contract for inclusion in the S&P GSCI Dynamic Roll Index or other strategy-based indices.

Separate from this scheduled roll described above and as a reminder, S&P DJI issued a public consultation requesting feedback on current market conditions and additional measures the Index Committee should consider. S&P DJI continues to reserve the right to review the contract roll schedule as market conditions warrant.

Below please find the list of impacted indices that will roll into the WTI Crude Oil August 2020 contract during the May roll period.
